Grim Congress hears President

Viet aid plea without hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders predict rejection of President Ford's more than doubled request for $722 million in military aid for South Vietnam but indicate likely approval of limited authority for U.S. troops to evacuate endangered Americans and Vietnamese.

Even before Ford spoke to an unusually grim and silent joint session of Congress and to the nation Thursday night, key lawmakers were saying there was virtually no chance that additional arms would be voted for South Vietnam.

"The Congress will never vote for military aid," declared House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts.

"Further military assistance would only prolong or merely postpone an ultimate Communist victory," said Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Appropriations Committee and until recently a strong supporter of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Ford coupled his request for the additional military aid, more than double the $300 million for arms and ammunition he has been unsuccessfully seeking for South Vietnam since January, with an appeal for a $250 million initial installment for food, medical supplies and other humanitarian aid for the hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese refugees.

In contrast, he made no renewal of his $222 million aid request for neighboring Cambodia, declaring "it may be too late" already to prevent the fall of that embattled country to Communist insurgents.

He called on Congress to act by the end of next week to clarify restrictions on the use of U.S. troops in Indochina so the troops can be used to protect American lives "by ensuring their evacuation, should this become necessary," and to help pull out up to 200,000 friendly Vietnamese.

"I hope that this authority will never be used, but if it is needed there will be no time for congressional debate," Ford said.

When he reached the portion of his "State of the World" speech in which he appealed for the extra Vietnam aid "without delay," there was an eerie silence through the vast House chamber, dotted with an unusually large number of empty seats.

"The sums I had requested before the major North Vietnamese offensive and the sudden South Vietnamese retreat are obviously inadequate," Ford said. "Half-hearted action would be worse than none. We must act together and decisively."

Several longtime war foes, such as

Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., shook their heads in disapproval. Freshman Reps. Anthony Moffett, D-Conn., and George Miller, D-Calif., walked out.

In all, the President was applauded only 12 times through the hour-long speech, most of it from Republicans. Half of the bursts came near the end when he appealed for a continued strong defense and warned against destruction of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Initial congressional reaction produced virtually unanimous agreement that Ford should have authority to use U.S. troops to evacuate the 6,000 remaining Americans in South Vietnam. Some members of Congress said they thought the President had that already.

There was less certainty, however, about the possible use of the troops to evacuate what Ford referred to as "those Vietnamese to whom we have a special obligation and whose lives may be endangered should the worst come to pass."

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said he feared using U.S. troops to evacuate large numbers of Vietnamese "would be getting us into a very, very dangerous situation because they could be used all over South Vietnam and the next thing we knew we'd be right back in that war."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., stressed the need to limit whatever authority is given to insure it is not misused at some future date for actions beyond those intended.

The White House had indicated in recent days that Ford would take a conciliatory tone towards the heavily Democratic Congress. The speech was filled with vows to "start afresh" and work with lawmakers "in the spirit of candor and consultation."

However, Ford firmly maintained his earlier stance that more U.S. military aid for South Vietnam was a necessity. That led Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., a long-time war critic, to say, "I'm appalled that a man could continue on such a bankrupt policy."

Ford shied away from predicting that the aid could turn the tide in Vietnam, confining himself to the statement that "a stabilization of the military situation offers the best opportunity for a political solution" and warning of the possible impact on other U.S. allies of a refusal to grant aid.

Generally, most support for Ford came from his fellow Republicans.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller termed the address "a great speech, forcefully delivered and with deep conviction," while Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott said Ford gave a "courageous" speech in which he "told the American people the truth, the unpleasant truth."

Though Ford's speech was intended as a worldwide foreign policy review, it omitted mention of a number of trouble spots, including Portugal, scene of

Solons asked to OK lake drilling

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's legislature was asked Thursday to repeal the ban against drilling for oil and gas in Lake Erie.

Rep. John A. Galbraith, R-69 Maumee, said Ohio's need for more energy supplies outweighs the fear of spills and other ecological concerns.

Coffee Break . .

HAVE YOU done your good deed today?

There's some of the "boy scout" philosophy in all of us and if you've been forgetting about helping little old ladies across the street and the like, all is not lost . . . You have a golden opportunity to make up for it by attending the bloodmobile visit Tuesday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., at Grace United Methodist Church, corner of North and Market streets . . .

Although you may never meet the person you help by donating a pint of your blood, just knowing it will be used to help someone is enough to fulfill your good deed requirement many times; especially since there is a special need for those having AB positive, O negative and B positive blood . . . These are needed as replacement pints for open heart surgeries . . .

"Well that's fine, but my time is limited to old ladies crossing streets," you say.

Most employers realize the importance of the blood drive and will give you the necessary time off in order to donate . . . If the drive takes in 90 per cent of quota, anyone in Fayette County needing blood shall have it for free . . . If the drive fails its quota, buying blood is extremely expensive . . .

Jennifer Holder, the new blood program chairwoman, would like all prospective donors to give her a call at 335-2531 or 335-3101 to make an appointment Tuesday to give . . . Those donors with appointments will have priority over those without and that means no waiting . . .

Welcome Wagon will provide free babysitting at the church and a free meal will be served after donating . . . Do your good deed on Tuesday . . .

"The risk is not all that great," he said of his newly introduced bill to repeal a drilling ban the legislature extended last year until July 1, 1978.

Lawmakers already have under study a proposal by Rep. Sam Speck, R-95 New Concord, which would permit drilling for gas only. Under his measure, explorations resulting in oil or brine would have to be sealed off.

If Galbraith's bill is successful, the Department of Natural Resources would reassume its prior authority to issue permits for drilling, either on a royalty or rental basis.

The permits, which could be valid for up to 10 years, would authorize the taking of oil and gas only within specified boundaries. The law states that the drilling must not conflict "with the rights of littoral (coast line) property owners."

Galbraith's bill was among nine introduced in the House Thursday before the lawmakers adjourned for the week. Among five offered in the Senate was one by Sen. M. Ben Gaeth, R-1 Defiance, to let the state regulate advertising along interstate and primary highways.

In floor action, majority Democrats muscled through the House by a 53-35 vote a measure that extends civil service protection to certain employees of the Public Utilities Commission, public libraries, and some other scattered agencies.

Republicans assailed the bill, by Rep. John D. Thompson, D-15 Cleveland, particularly over about 50 employees of the John J. Gilligan administration who were transferred from the governor's office and other agencies to the utilities commission.

Thompson and others took exception to an assertion by Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, that the bill was designed to protect "Gilligan's government in exile." The Clevelandlander said over all, the measure gives civil service status to "more Republicans than Democrats."

Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, challenged the appointment of Republican C. Luther Heckman 32, by Gov. James A. Rhodes to the utility commission's top job — chairman. "I don't know what his qualifications are," said Wilkowski, noting that most of Heckman's experience "appears to have been in the House's Republican leadership office about 40 feet down the hall."

Norris said his main concern is that the bill, which still requires Senate action, gives classified status to the employees without them having to take a competitive examination. "It doesn't seem to matter whether they are qualified," he said.

In other action, the House approved and sent to the Senate measures requiring legislative review of rules and regulations of state agencies—before they can take effect—and setting up a committee of seven senators and seven House members to study land use in Ohio.

The committee, if approved by the Senate, would make a comprehensive study of land use policies and programs and report back to the legislature no later than Jan. 1, 1977. Rep. Eugene Branstool, D-1 Utica, a co-sponsor, called the legislation "vital" for proper state planning. Rep. Waldo Bennett Rose, R-64 Lima, added that it can help the state "avoid some crises down the pike."

Winner views lottery drawing on television

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Dorothy Lanham said it was "a little more than I could go through with, the excitement and all," so she sat at home in Kilbuck and watched on TV while her ticket won $300,000 in the Ohio lottery Thursday night.

Mrs. Lanham, 59, said she and her daughter and son-in-law were so happy "we cried" when her husband, Samuel, outlasted five others to win the big prize.

"Actually, it was my ticket in the first place," Mrs. Lanham told the Associated Press by telephone from her home.

"But I chickened out, so I turned it over to him....His name went on the ticket...."

"In Kilbuck they all knew I had won...but it's all in the family."

Lanham, 58, told the television audience from Cleveland station WEWS-TV (Channel 5) that he "hadn't had a vacation in 15 years" from his job as chief engineer for Astro Metallurgical in Wooster and plans to go to Europe.

However, Mrs. Lanham said she doesn't expect life to change much and added that the vacation trip "may be something in the future."

"We've got other things we can plan for now," she said without elaborating. But she said she hopes her husband will "ease up a little and not work so many hours."

Kim Crooks of Streetsboro, who picked up the $30,000 second prize, said he already has spent some of his winnings to buy a motorcycle.

The other four contestants received the minimum prizes of $15,000 each. They included John J. Murciak of Ida, Mich., and Ohioans James T. Bulkowski, Parma; Esther M. McCullough of Hartsville, and Dean McClood of New Lebanon.

Regular weekly numbers drawn Thursday night were announced by the lottery commission as 787 for the single set and 107 923 for the double set.

Annual Home Show booked May 2-4

The tenth annual Fayette County Home Show, sponsored by the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, will be held May 2-4 in the Mahan and Fine Arts buildings on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Rick Stinson, chairman of this year's event, said 25 exhibitors have signed up to display their business wares for the public with expectations of receiving ten additional show participants.

Stinson said the show is being held a month later in hopes of having better weather and will include displays from many different businesses this year.

"We will be having more people displaying products outdoors, such as mobile homes, lawn and garden equipment and campers," Stinson said. Other displays generally include a variety of home furnishings such as appliances, carpeting, building materials, furniture, sporting goods and home entertainment centers.

The official opening of the 1975 Home Show will be held at 6 p.m.

Friday with members of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors Club on hand for the traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Stinson said the annual home show is designed to generate public interest in products being sold by Washington C.H. area businesses and allow businesses to become more familiar with the community.

Hours for the show will be from 6 until 9 p.m. Friday, 1 until 9 p.m. Saturday and 1 until 6 p.m. Sunday. A 50 cent admission fee will be charged for entry to the show.

With the ticket to the show, visitors will be eligible to receive many prizes being donated continuously during the show by the participating businesses and three grand prizes that will be given away by the Chamber of Commerce.

Stinson said spaces are still available for the Home Show and any interested business may contact him for further information.

Ulterior motive in Ford request?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The immediate and overwhelmingly negative congressional reaction to President Ford's $722-million, arms-aid request for Vietnam raises serious questions about his real goals.

Ford made the arms pitch to Congress Thursday night knowing full well both the legislators and the majority of the American people would reject it.

But he also knew that Congress might accept a separate plan in his "State of the World" address to evacuate Americans in South Vietnam by using U.S. troops.

There were signs that Ford was using the aid request — more than double his original proposal — as a cover for the more immediate need of arranging the evacuation.

For instance, the $722 million was arrived at in a curious way, reflecting a lack of certainty that the amount would accomplish anything.

As the administration officials explained, the original $300-million request had become absurd in the face of a changed military situation.

And once it was decided to ask for more aid, the only other recommendation Ford had was the $722-million figure proposed by Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand upon his return from Vietnam.

The officials said that only time will tell if it is adequate, adding that not every military assessment in the past about Vietnam has been correct.

Why, then, did Ford make what is a quixotic effort at best?

The possibilities include:

—Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger know Vietnam cannot be saved and want to make sure Congress takes the blame by proposing so high a figure it was bound to lose.

—The $722-million request was made in the same way labor unions make inflated wage demands in order to draw a counteroffer closer to their realistic goals.

—An effort was needed to make the Saigon government think there is a chance for aid in order to prevent South Vietnamese from turning on the remaining Americans in bloody reprisals for giving up.

The answers given by administration officials vary from outright rejection to silence.

As to the suggestion that Ford is maneuvering Congress into taking the blame for Vietnam's fall, the officials almost plead that they are not interested in placing blame.

They are equally firm in saying that while the $722 million may or may not be an adequate figure, it is clear that any substantially lower figure would not suffice.

The administration's actual goal appears to be reflected in its silence over the possibility that Ford wants to keep Saigon thinking there is a chance for aid in order to buy time to evacuate Americans and, possibly, some South Vietnamese friends.

If Ford really thought there was a chance at a large aid figure, he would not have raised the extremely touchy issue of reintroducing American troops into South Vietnam.

The conclusion, then, is that Ford wants to keep open the possibility of increased aid until the safety of the 6,000 Americans still in Vietnam is assured.

Oil meeting deadlocked

PARIS (AP) — The international meeting making preparations for a world oil and energy conference this summer may continue beyond today because of a deadlock over the demand that the conference deal with all raw materials the underdeveloped countries sell to the industrial nations.

The preparatory meeting opened Monday and was to have ended today. But after a marathon session Thursday night failed to resolve the deadlock, a spokesman announced, "The meeting decided that the group will continue its work as long as this is useful, without a time limit."

The head of the European Common Market delegation, Eamonn Gallagher of Ireland, told newsmen that a compromise could be reached if the Arab oil countries were more flexible.

"We were invited to Paris to talk about energy," he said. "Other countries understood that they were invited to talk about raw materials."

"Now we cannot accept the idea of talking about raw materials when they are already being discussed in other international forums."

The industrialized nations proposed the energy conference in the hope that they could work out long-term arrangements with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to ensure future supplies of oil at stable prices and in the quantities they want. They also would like to arrange some stable system for the investment of much of the oil countries' huge surplus revenues in the industrial countries.

Led by Algeria, the four oil countries and three other underdeveloped nations at the preparatory meeting are demanding that the summer conference also take up all raw materials exported by the Third World and technological and other development aid they want from the industrial world.

RALPH DAVIDSON

Rhodes seeks gas exploration aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes said Thursday his state's request for a $21 million federal grant to increase its natural gas production is consistent with the national goal of energy self-sufficiency by 1985.

Rhodes also told Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and other administration officials that Ohio's proposal will address the more immediate problem of high unemployment.

Unemployment has already reached

9.2 per cent in Ohio and the state lost 1.6 million man days last year for lack of natural gas, Rhodes said.

Unless some positive response is made, he said, "come warm weather they (the unemployed) are going to march."

Rhodes said the funds, requested of the Energy Research and Development Administration, would be spent to identify natural gas reserves in state sand formations.

Also, he said, they would fund research and development programs to determine how natural gas reserves in the Devonian Shale formation could be recovered economically.

North Carolina Gov. James Holshouser, whose state is also short of natural gas said he supports Ohio's attempt to get federal aid.

"Right now we have reached the point where we will go to bat for anything that will improve our capacity," Holshouser said.

North Carolina has "better than 10 per cent unemployment," Holshouser said. "Certainly a significant part of that is attributable to the problems of natural gas."

A part of the money Ohio has requested would be used for test drillings in the Clinton, Rose Run and deeper sand formations to determine the size of the reserves.

Another portion would be spent developing the size of the reserves.

Part of the funds also would be spent developing techniques for the efficient recovery of natural gas from the Devonian shale formation, which extends throughout Appalachia.

If Ohio manages to begin developing its natural gas reserves, shipments would have to be cleared with the Federal Power Commission, which regulates pipeline use.

FPC Chairman John Nassikas said he applauds the state's efforts at self-help and hopes they can go forward "without obstacles of federal law or federal commissions."

Meanwhile, in Columbus, the Ohio Legislature's new Joint Select Committee on Energy was being briefed Thursday on a survey indicating natural gas curtailment last winter had relatively little direct impact on the state's employment.

The 16-member committee was created by the legislature last month to study utility ratemaking and the availability of fuel sources.

The still-incomplete survey reported that only 3 per cent of 720 Ohio companies said they laid off or cut back work forces as a direct result of natural gas curtailment.

"We were a little surprised at how few companies had to lay off people," Seymour Goldstone, executive secretary of the Energy Emergency Commission told the lawmakers.

Goldstone said the 944 workers directly affected represented one-fourth of one per cent of the total employment of the companies responding to the survey.

Ceramics, glass, metal and food industries were the hardest hit, he said.

According to the survey, 9 per cent of the companies could not determine to what extent layoffs were due to curtailment; 54 per cent attributed cutbacks to the "soft economy," and 34 per cent said curtailment had "no impact" on employment.

Rep. Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Boardman, chairman of the select committee, said however that "the curtailment was serious enough that if the economy had been strong there would have been sizable layoffs."

Carney's committee will hear from the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio on Monday. Legislators are expected to focus on PUCO's rate-making procedures in preparing an Oct. 15 report for the General Assembly.

Stock list up slightly

NEW YORK (AP) The stock market moved higher again today after a brief delay at the opening because of equipment problems at the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up a fraction, and gainers held a 3-2 over-all NYSE count.

The trading interruption the second this week and the fifth so far this year because of computer difficulties lasted less than five minutes.

Analysts said the market was benefiting from continuing optimism over the interest rate outlook and hopes for an economic recovery later in the year.

Today's prices included Kennecott Copper, up 1/4 at 38; Commonwealth Oil Refining, up 1/2 at 7 1/2; Weyerhaeuser, 1/4 higher at 33 1/2, and Dow Chemical, up 1/2 at 77 1/2.

New guru to replace 'playboy'

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Shri Mataji, the Holy Mother of the Divine Light Mission, says she has named her oldest son to replace his brother Maharaj Ji as guru of the movement because her youngest son became a playboy after he moved to the United States.

"Whatever a mother does, she does for the good of the child," said the widow of the founder of the movement. "Once he has fallen from his high pedestal because of his own misdeeds, he cannot deserve any more to be respected because he has broken the discipline and ideals that beehive a guru. But I will accept him as a son any time."

Bal Bhagwan Ji, 24, is her choice for the new leader of the movement, which claims more than 8 million devotees, most of them in India. Maharaj Ji, the youngest of four brothers, is now 17 and has been the guru of the movement since his mother blessed him as a Perfect Master after the death of her husband in 1966.

Shri Mataji in a statement past week accused Maharaj Ji of adopting "a despicable, nonspiritual way of life" while living for the past two years in the United States. His headquarters in Denver, Colo., says he returned to India this week to oust his mother and oldest brother from the Mission, but he has not surfaced yet.

There is speculation the youth may be trying to assess his strength in India before making a move. A test could come this weekend, when separate festivals have been announced for the rival gurus to celebrate the Hindu spring harvest holiday.

The Denver headquarters said Maharaj Ji would hold his in Lucknow, in northern India. Shri Mataji and Bhagwan Ji plan their celebration at Hardwar, in the Himalayan foothills on the banks of the sacred Ganges.

rising Communist strength, and Cuba. Besides the Vietnam aid, Ford asked for:

—Repeal of the provision barring U.S. military aid to Turkey, passed last year because of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus.

—Passage of legislation to permit him to waive restrictions in last year's trade act, such as the refusal to grant trade benefits to countries such as Ecuador, Venezuela, Nigeria and Indonesia which refused to join Arab nations in the 1973 oil embargo against the United States.

—Legislation to undo the trade law provision barring trade benefits for the Soviet Union because of its emigration policies, a provision Ford said has harmed U.S.-Soviet relations and given Western Europe and Japan business that could have gone to the United States.

In discussing the Middle East, Ford said the United States has "agreed in principle" to convene the Geneva Conference but is prepared "as well to explore other forums" in an effort to pursue whatever course seems promising.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marjorie Main, 85, character actress who had appeared on Broadway and television and in at least 80 movies, died Thursday of cancer. One of her best-known characters was the gravel-voiced but lovable hillbilly farm wife of the "Ma and Pa Kettle" film series.

Ex-GOP leader dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles Wesley Roberts, 72, Republican national chairman under President Dwight D. Eisenhower, died of a heart attack Wednesday. He resigned the chairmanship under fire in 1953 after serving little more than two months. He was accused of violating the spirit of a Kansas lobbying law.

Cambodians repulse Khmer Rouge drive

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Government ground forces and planes using advanced American fire bombs halted a 200-man Khmer Rouge force that battled to within two miles of Phnom Penh's airport, reports from the area said.

The Cambodian command was trying to organize a counterattack today, the reports said.

Military sources said "the government's defense line strengthened somewhat" after the Cambodian air force rained CBU55 fire bombs on the insurgent forces that penetrated to within mortar range of the airport, the capital's last supply line.

The Phnom Penh command claimed that 700 insurgents were killed in aerial and artillery bombardments 7 and 12 miles northwest and west of the city. Although such claims are always suspect, a Western reporter in the field said the government T28's "caught 'em in the open."

When the CBU55's hit, they release a flammable aerosol cloud that detonates a few seconds later. The fire storm created absorbs the oxygen within a 100-yard radius and explodes the lungs of those breathing the fumes, U.S. government literature on the bomb says. The Cambodian air force has used the bomb for the past three months, and the U.S. Navy used it in Vietnam.

Despite the nearness of the Khmer Rouge to the airport, police sources said only rockets were used in the daily bombardment of the field today. Twenty hit the field shortly after dawn, killing two persons, but the American supply airlift was not affected.

On Thursday the U.S. ricelift from Saigon was suspended for five hours because of shellfire, but a total of seven DC8 shipments were delivered. The ammunition lift from Bangkok was not affected and made 23 C130 flights.

U.S. Embassy officials were disappointed by President Ford's failure in his foreign policy address to request more funds for Cambodia and his comment that "it may be too late" for the $222 million he asked for in January to do any good. Some American diplomats interpreted this to mean Washington has written off Cambodia and has decided to draw the line at South Vietnam.

Meanwhile U.S. Embassy personnel are dismayed at the lackadaisical attitude of the Cambodian government.

"Even though they have the knife at their throats, they still do nothing," one U.S. official said.

South Viets repel new Red attacks

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese troops withstood a third day of assaults against a provincial capital 40 miles east of Saigon today and battled attacks on two district capitals to the south, the Saigon command reported.

The command said the North Vietnamese who began attacking Xuan Loc, the capital of Long Khanh province, on Wednesday hit the eastern and southeastern edges of the city today.

The Viet Cong claimed the Communist-led forces had gained complete control of the market place, the provincial headquarters, an engineering base and the eastern part of the airfield. But the Saigon command claimed the invaders had been driven out.

To the southwest, 20 to 30 miles from Saigon near the main road to the rice fields of the Mekong Delta, hard fighting was reported in and around Thu Thua and Ben Tranh, both district capitals.

More than 50 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed in the fighting near Ben Tranh, the Saigon command said. It said there were no government casualties.

Associated Press newsmen Huynh Cong Ut reported closequarter fighting inside Thu Thua. He said policemen with loudspeakers called on Viet Cong sappers to surrender as street fighting broke out. Instead, the sappers inside houses fired back and both sides hurled hand grenades. Saigon troops later put bodies of young Viet Cong sappers on display in the center of town.

The battles in Long Khanh and Long An provinces are the first major fighting in the Saigon region in the Communists' five-week-old offensive that has cost the South Vietnamese government three-fourths of the country. But foreign observers said they still could not decide whether the attacks were the immediate prelude to an offensive against Saigon.

The Saigon command claims that more than 900 Communist troops were killed in the first two days of the battle for Xuan Loc and reported 18 South Vietnamese killed and 110 wounded. It said four prisoners and 254 weapons were captured and 10 T54 medium tanks destroyed.

In Cambodia, government troops, planes and artillery halted a 200-man rebel force that battled to within two miles of the Phnom Penh airport. The military command claimed 700 Khmer Rouge were killed in the aerial and artillery bombardment northwest of the capital.

The Cambodian army was trying to organize a counterattack to push the Khmer Rouge out of mortar range of the airport, Phnom Penh's last supply line.

Ohio may be unable to use freed federal road cash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A federal court ruling that could make more than $100 million available for highway construction in Ohio may mean little to the state.

"It means nothing," said Ben Brace, fiscal expert in the Ohio transportation department. "It is all federal matching funds and we just don't have the matching dollars."

"Even if the judgment is accepted by the defense, we can't use the normal flow of federal highway money."

Brace, deputy director for budget and fiscal management, commented after U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary ruled for Ohio in a suit the state brought to release impounded federal highway funds.

Atty. Gen. William J. Brown sued in 1973 for release of $123 million which former President Nixon impounded on grounds it would be inflationary. Brown's office said more money has accrued to Ohio since then.

Kinneary noted in his ruling that the total amount is in dispute. Brown's office estimated the total could go as high as $312 million.

Brace said most of the money involved would be for the federal interstate highway program which he said is virtually complete in Ohio.

NEW ATTRACTION — One of the new attractions at Kings Island for 1975 is the "Troika." This exciting ride combines a twisting and spinning action as the entire structure rotates. The "Troika" was imported from Switzerland. Kings Island opens for preview weekends April 26 and will begin daily operation May 24.

New additions to be introduced at Kings Island in 1975 season

KINGS MILLS, Ohio — Kings Island will unveil a new adventure in music and motion this spring.

On April 26, the park will begin introducing the new additions for the 1975 season which includes an expansion of the Coney Island theme area featuring all new rides, shows and games. Also included is an exotic bird show in Lion Country Safari.

Visitors will step into a world of yesterday and tomorrow as they explore the new Coney Island theme area. Its the early 1900's of gaslights and carousels combined with a fantasy of new rides and attractions from out of the 21st century.

Highlighting the new addition will be a giant double wheel. A panorama of light and motion, the double wheel differs from the conventional ferris wheel in that the two passenger areas operate alternately and load in a horizontal position. At 135 feet, the double wheel is the tallest structure on the Coney Island mall.

Daring visitors will have the opportunity to defy gravity with an exciting ride on the "Troika". Imported from Switzerland, this unique attraction combines a twisting and spinning motion as the entire structure rotates.

At the new games building young and old alike can practice their skills with baseballs and milk bottles from grandpa's day or try to beat the U.F.O.s in a futuristic game of "Space Frisbee".

Skee-ball will be getting a new home at Kings Island this year as the popular game moves inside a new building that reflects in its architecture the nostalgic days of yesteryear. The facility features 75 machines where skeeball practitioners can play in air conditioned comfort.

Sunshine music fills the air as Kings Island adds a new segment to its extensive variety of entertainment. A new 500 seat amphitheater on the Coney Island mall will feature a sparkling musical revue. With the addition of this new show there is a total of nine hours of continuous live entertainment at the park.

Hungry guests can get a quick snack or full meal at Kings Island's new family restaurant "The Brass Ring". Visitors can choose from a wide variety of foods served on a large revolving platform. The Brass Ring's open air pavilion provides a relaxing atmosphere for dining.

African adventures in Lion Country Safari this year include an exotic bird show. Macaws, cockatoos, parrots and other trained birds live and perform among the bamboo and palm trees of a specially constructed sanctuary and 1,500 seat amphitheater.

Kings Island opens for preview weekends April 26, with all of the new attractions scheduled to be in operation for the grand opening May 24. The one price admission to Kings Island is $7 with children two years of age and under admitted free. Senior citizens 60 years and older are admitted to the park at half-price each Sunday of the 1975 season.

The family entertainment center features the theme park, resort hotel, camping, accommodations, two picturesque 18-hole golf courses, International Restaurant, wildlife preserve and a condominium community now under construction.

Kings Island is located north of Cincinnati on I-71. In addition to Kings Island Taft Broadcasting also operates Kings Dominion on I-95 north of Richmond, Virginia and Carowinds located on I-77 south of Charlotte, North Carolina.

Blacks told brain power must be used

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Black people in America have to learn to use their brain power, stop making excuses for themselves and invest in their future, says Charles Evers, the first black mayor of a biracial Mississippi town.

Evers, speaking Thursday night at the University of Akron, said, "We have to teach our young people that the most important thing in the world is to get something up here—in your head, and in your pocket and not shake a big, black fist."

"I know I am not going to be popular saying that, but we have got to produce...folks respect those who are producing and not making excuses."

After six years as mayor of Fayette, Miss., which he says is the seat of the fourth-poorest county in the nation,

Evers said the town now has a $5 million health clinic, an ITT plant employing more than 200 mothers who formerly were on welfare, a vocational training school and 80 federally subsidized low-income housing units.

He said some of those gains have come from such people as former President Nixon and Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

"Nixon tricked the white people," Evers said, "because the former president did not stop busing or end the Office of Economic Opportunity as he told the voters he would. And because Nixon appointed more blacks in government positions than had any previous administration, blacks benefited a great deal."

Evers said Wallace is changing his ways and now apparently is helping blacks.

"Even if Wallace only wanted our votes for the presidency, he still would have been good for us because life for blacks will never be the way it was," he said.

Biology instructors win 'Monkey Trial'

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Biology teachers won round two of a modern day "Monkey Trial" when the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down a new Tennessee law restricting the teaching of evolution.

The court, in a split 2-1 decision, announced Thursday, remarked that the case was "a 1974 version of the legislative effort to suppress the theory of evolution which produced the famous Scopes monkey trial of 1925."

In that trial, a Dayton, Tenn., teacher was found guilty violating Tennessee law by teaching Darwin's theory of evolution.

The present statute, which is also being challenged before the Tennessee Supreme Court, outlawed biology textbooks discussing evolution which do not explain that is a "theory" and not "scientific fact."

Permitted texts would also be required to contain man's origins as explained in the Bible.

Man arrested in Toledo holdup

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)— The FBI says Willie Calhoun Jr. has been arrested on federal charges in the July 1974 robbery of the Toledo Home Federal Savings and Loan Association in Toledo, Ohio.

Agents said Calhoun was seen in the eastern section of Birmingham Thursday and arrested by FBI agents and Birmingham police while he was hiding in an upstairs apartment.

Agent in Charge L. R. Kirkpatrick said a warrant was issued for Calhoun after the July 29, 1974, robbery and he had been sought since.

Hydrogen as auto fuel

Nine miles to the gallon is not much. Most particularly it is not much when the fuel used costs around $1.80 a gallon.

The Postal Service experiments in which this mileage was achieved by a quarter-ton vehicle are nevertheless of significance. The fuel used was liquid hydrogen. It is expensive now. Mass production would considerably lower the cost, however, and the important thing is that hydrogen reserves in the world's oceans are for practical purposes unlimited.

This has prompted Postal Service officials commenting on the tests to say they think liquid hydrogen may have "the potential of averting future energy shortages." Quite possibly they are right.

The initial tests with a Postal Service vehicle were done in the mechanical engineering department of the University of California in Los Angeles. Much further research and testing must be done before hydrogen gas will be fully proven as an automotive fuel. Thus far the results are promising.

A WORD EDGEWISE By John P. Roche

Protagonists for two generations

A couple of weeks ago the Public Broadcasting Service produced a program on Vietnam, Cambodia and the United States. The panel included Ambassador Graham Martin and Congressman Paul McCloskey (R-Calif.), and within half an hour it became clear to me that Martin and McCloskey were far more than opponents on our Southeast Asian policy — they were protagonists for two generations. They are both dedicated, talented, patriotic Americans, but they simply steer by different stars. To put it another way, they have different pictures of the world in their minds.

One of the reasons I felt this so strongly is that I am in the intermediate generation, one which began, ironically, with the McCloskey approach and wound up with that of Martin. In the course of his remarks, the Congressman made it apparent that he is not only an isolationist (or "continentalist" to avoid the pejorative connotation of isolationist) but proud of it. Indeed, he quoted the late Senator Robert Taft as a prophetic voice.

Obviously an anti-Communist with no sympathy for Hanoi, Moscow or Peking, McCloskey simply didn't see any sensible rationale for our Vietnam and Cambodian involvement. It is absurd, he suggested, for us to try to graft our value system on those of Asia. Unlike a number of other continentalists, McCloskey was completely consistent: he said we must also rethink our commitment in the Middle East and regretted the Jackson-Vanik amendment to the trade bill.

Dean Rusk observed a while ago, in his wry fashion, that he hoped the present generation would not avoid the mistakes of their fathers by imitating those of their grandfathers. As I watched and listened, I had the strange feeling that everything McCloskey said was already on file, that if I closed my eyes the year could be 1938 and the speaker Norman Thomas or Senator Burton K. Wheeler. As an activist in the socialist opposition to American entry into World War II, I recall myself making impassioned pleas for non-involvement in a world immune to American democratic values. I also remember a meeting at Town Hall, a favorite site for debates in New York, where Norman Thomas (one of the century's most masterful debaters) orally shredded some pro-war spokesman. Poland was Thomas' centerpiece: with savage irony he inquired why we were supposed to fight and die for a bunch of fascist colonies. It made sense to me; I ignored the Graham Martins of that era who argued that the issue was not Poland but the survival of Western honor confronted by totalitarianism.

This is not a mea culpa: I now believe I was wrong, but I held convictions honestly arrived at. What World War II did was provided a new set of pictures in my mind, notably concerning the ultimate evil of totalitarianism, images which led to become — and remain — a liberal cold warrior. Unlike Representative McCloskey, I am incapable of believing that the Vietnamese people (from whom I have great respect and affection) would prefer Hanoi's iron dictatorship to Thieu's clumsy authoritarianism. In saying this, to repeat, I am not questioning McCloskey's integrity. (He has no trace, for example, of the racism President Johnson attributed to former Senator J.W. Fulbright: "They're not our kind of folks.") I can no more prove my thesis than McCloskey can prove his.

If McCloskey was the incarnation of the continentalist, Graham Martin's tragic sense of the impact of a debacle in Southeast Asia incarnated the faith of the internationalist. Far too prudent to want the U.S. to play world policeman (Martin was, indeed, one of the most powerful voices opposing the Americanization of the war in Vietnam), he nonetheless believes the issue today is no more Vietnam or Cambodia than in 1939 it was Poland. The question for Americans, as he sees it, is do we want to continue our post-war role as the barrier against totalitarian expansion? The underlying assumption (which I share) is that when a nation falls to the totalitarians (monolithic or polycentric), it is a Bad Thing. To Congressman McCloskey this smacks of ethical arrogance, though he would certainly never be as patronizing as Shirley MacLaine, who recently said that; although she personally couldn't tolerate life under Chinese Communism, it was great for the Chinese! McCloskey and Martin: two generations, two world-views, two visions of American destiny. Willy-nilly, the people, sooner or later, must choose between them.

Rule on illegal searches rapped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio judge has proposed a new law which would allow prosecutors to use evidence obtained during illegal searches.

The proposed law would replace the "exclusionary rule," which forbids the use of evidence obtained by police officers in violation of Fourth Amendment rights.

It would substitute a rule allowing persons to bring lawsuits against police who abuse searches and to make the state liable for damages.

Judge R. Patrick West of the Franklin County Municipal Court proposed the law in a recent edition of the Ohio Bar Journal, publication of the Ohio Bar Association.

West said his proposal is aimed at "the most misunderstood and publicly distrusted rule we must work with." He said the exclusionary rule is what most people speak of when they talk of "coddling criminals" — obviously guilty criminals going free because a policeman made a mistake.

"The object of the exclusionary rule was to discourage police abuse by keeping them from using the fruits of any dirty business," Judge West said. "The rule falls far short of its goal."

"The truth may be twisted to make a fruitful search appear to be lawful. Most judges will strain to find an exception into which such a search might fit in order to uphold it."

"Police do not favor the rule and feel it hampers legitimate law enforcement," he said. "This combined with public hostility causes the rule to be lacking in moral sanction which is so important to effectiveness of any law."

The result, Judge West said, is a minimum of justice and a maximum of public distrust and antagonism toward the justice system.

The judge noted Chief Justice Warren Burger has called for abolition of the exclusionary rule.

"Chief Justice Burger invited the states to find a replacement for the exclusionary rule, which we must keep and enforce until an effective alternative is available," he said.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Housewife feels jailed and her hubby's the warden

DEAR ABBY: I am 27-years old and my husband is 31. We've been married for 10 years and have three really nice sons.

Abby, I am a clean, respectable woman, but my home is getting more like a prison every day.

My husband doesn't think I need to leave the house. He doesn't even let me go to church because he doesn't care to go.

I can't belong to any clubs or organizations because my husband thinks a woman's place is in the home and no place else. He wouldn't even let me join the PTA, and our two oldest boys are so ashamed because their teachers have never met me.

We don't socialize with anybody because my husband says we don't need friends. The only time I get out of the house is when we go shopping together once a week. He handles all the money.

We get into quarrels every time I say I want to go somewhere. Both our families are far away. When I ask him to please sit down and talk things over, he says there is nothing to talk about. If I talk back to him, I end up with a busted mouth, a black eye and bruises.

I mentioned divorce once and he beat me up so bad I could hardly get out of bed for two days. Abby, I can't take the boys and leave because I don't drive and I don't have five dollars of my own. What should I do?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: A woman who takes repeated beatings from her husband needs counseling, and badly. The Family Service Agency (listed in your phone book) offers this confidential, excellent help. And don't worry about not having any money. Their fee is based on your ability to pay. If you have no money, there is no charge.

Also, there are laws stating that a man is responsible for the support of his wife and children no matter what he may say about it. I urge you to get the help you need at once. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13-years-old and could pass for 16. I babysit to earn my own money.

My problem is my mother. She said I can spend my own money on whatever I want as long as it is under $10. If it costs more than that, I have to get permission to buy it.

I saw a beautiful ring that costs $16.95, and I want to buy it. I told my mother about it, and she said that it was probably just a piece of junk. And that I couldn't buy it.

Abby, I keep thinking about that ring, and I really want it. Would it be wrong if I bought it and just didn't wear it around the house? My mother never snoops in my drawers.

MAD AT MOM

DEAR MAD: You sound like too nice a girl to be playing hide and sneak. One lie leads to another. Be honest. It's great for your conscience.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TOO GENEROUS": I don't know what your definition of "generosity" is, but those who give themselves are not constantly trying to prove their "love" by giving "things."

Pie throwing spreading across nation

By The Associated Press

Splat! Here come the pie throwers. Stalking their targets in classrooms and cafes, on campus and maybe even on Capitol Hill, they are pushing pies in the faces of unsuspecting citizens.

The fad started almost a year ago with the establishment of Pie Kill Unlimited in New York. Rex Weiner, the organizer, was a former political prankster who decided that "politicians shouldn't have a monopoly on dirty tricks."

For a fee of $40 and up, Weiner and his crew throw pies in offices and at conventions and parties.

The practice appears to have spread, with some of the pie throwers operating on an amateur basis and others organizing into money-making groups.

Most of the victims apparently take their faceful of pie filling or shaving cream in good humor, but a few have filed charges.

Bruce Vallone, 20, of Cranston, R.I., was charged with assaulting a teacher at his former high school after he and three other young men entered Cranston High School and tossed a pie at Albert J. Gambardella. Vallone has pleaded innocent.

A teacher at Wilson Junior High in Glendale, Calif., made a citizen's arrest after her glasses were knocked off when a 14-year-old girl, who was moving to Florida the next day, took aim with a cream pie. The girl was released in her father's custody and left town as scheduled.

Two Groton, Conn., high school students were charged with breach of the peace and reckless endangerment when they threw a shaving cream pie at a science teacher. Officials decided not to prosecute one of the students and the other case was expected to be dropped. The principal said the incident "started out as a joke and backfired" when the teacher struggled, cutting his knee and tearing his clothing.

United Methodist Ministers Choir

Ministers prepare musical program

The West Ohio Conference United Methodist Ministers Choir will present a program of sacred music at the First United Methodist Church in Mt. Sterling April 18 at 7:30 p.m.
This unique choral group consists of 45 United Methodist ministers from all over the state. It is the only known choir in the world to be made up entirely of ordained clergy.

The choir was formed in 1948 to give musical leadership during the daily worship services in the annual conference sessions held each June at Lakeside.
The director of the choir is Richard

Palmquist, organist and minister of music at the North Broadway United Methodist Church in Columbus. Ministers of the Washington C.H. area who are members of the choir are the Rev. Herman Secoy and the Rev. Albert Briggs, both of Sabina, and the Rev. Lynn Rainsberger of Mt. Sterling.
In addition to giving several concerts each year in churches throughout Ohio, the choir also sings for special festival occasions. During July, 1975, the choir is taking a 10-day concert tour through the mid-west and western states.

The choir toured Europe in the summers of 1962 and 1972, participating in the "Eistedde," an international music festival held in Llangollen, Wales. A concert tour in South America is being planned for 1978 and a return to Europe in 1982.

The concerts include a sampling of church music from the 16th century to the present. The community is invited to this musical celebration, according to Rev. Rainsberger, minister of the church. A free-will offering will be received.

Jobless have new opportunity

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have a tradition of turning adversity to advantage, personally and as a nation, and Tyler Hicks thinks some of the jobless faced with such a situation now. Many of the jobless have an opportunity in disguise, says Hicks, a man who personifies the entrepreneurial spirit.

The opportunity, he says, is the chance to fulfill those vague dreams of going into business, dreams that never were sharpened into practical moves because the motivation was weak, the opportunity seemingly too distant.

But, says Hicks, who for many years has earned more than $100,000 a year in sparetime businesses, "People get angry when they get laid off. They become innovative. They use their imagination." Some become businessmen.

Hicks has letters from blue collar workers who lost their jobs and then established their own businesses, feel they are succeeding, and are enjoying the experience so much it seems unlikely they'll ever go back to their old jobs.

Which businesses should the jobless consider? "Ones that always have interested them," says Hicks. "People who have been successful in businesses of their own have always done it in areas they know and like."

He especially recommends "paper businesses," which are enterprises requiring little more than stationery as overhead, such as credit and collection agencies, publishing, mail order sales and export-import. He likes real estate too.

It is important, however, to match your desires to the needs of the market place. Because you like to do something isn't sufficient reason to go into business, but if people like what you do, then it might be.

Hicks replied: There are many individuals and even professional lenders willing to put up the money, but you have to keep searching them out.

Yes, it is likely you'll have to pay high interest charges, Hicks agrees, but adds: "So what." He maintains that so long as a business generates the income to pay the interest and to provide a paycheck, it's a good loan.

Some businesses can be acquired for no investment but a person's own work. One of the likeliest situations today would involve an institutional lender, such as a bank or loan association that was forced to repossess income property.

"Most of them don't like to admit they have such property," says Hicks, because it reflects on their judgment. But if pressed they might consider an individual taking over the repossessed property for no down payment.

Insurance loan rates too low?

NEW YORK (AP) — A concerted effort is being made by the life insurance industry to raise the rate on policy loans to as much as 8 per cent a year through state legislative action. The campaign, which already has met success in some states, threatens what some consumers consider the best credit deal available to them, the 5 per cent loan on a policy's cash value.

Critics contend, however, that the low cost life insurance loan never has been the deal it was cracked up to be. In effect, they contend, policyholders merely borrow their own money — and pay for the use of it.

Whatever, 24 states already permit an 8 per cent rate. The industry has succeeded in having its model bill passed in North Dakota and Virginia — efforts are being pressed in 21 other states.

Earl Clark, chairman of the American Life Insurance Association, which is pushing the model bill before state legislatures, says: "We're trying to plug a hole in the dike." The bill seeks a variable rate up to 8 per cent. Once a year, an insurance company would, with 30 days notice to the state insurance department, set its rate for the next year, if it wanted to change. Loans already in effect would not be changed.

"In general," Clark said, "interest rates on policy loans now are unrealistically low, and we are trying to reach a realistic figure." The low return, he said, dilutes the total investment return and weakens companies.

"We think the customer is better served by a viable, strong industry," he said, explaining that the low return on such loans lowers income and puts the insurers at a disadvantage in competing with banks for corporate pensions.

Clark, who is chairman of Occidental Life Insurance Co., the most profitable arm of the giant Transamerica Corp., said the situation began coming to a head in 1970.

At that time, when a credit crunch existed, Clark said insurers noticed people were borrowing on policies for reasons other than before, when loans were sought only for emergencies or special need.

Caught with short supplies of lendable funds, banks sometimes declined to make consumer loans, sometimes even recommending to customers that they apply for insurance loans. Millions took the advice.

The problem arose again in 1973 and early 1974, when interest rates rose generally, but insurers remained committed by law to lend at 5 or 6 per cent.

Expert furrier needs apprentice

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Joe Namath's full-length fur coat wasn't unique.

David Hochstein, a Dayton furrier celebrating his 25th year in the business, remembers making a fur coat for another man.

"It was my wife's beautician, in fact," said Hochstein, who began his trade making leather jackets while a German refugee in World War II in England.

"He's about 6-foot-4," he said, "and he wanted a natural raccoon coat. He brought me this British magazine and showed me a picture of what he wanted."

Hochstein came to Dayton from New York, where he had immigrated after the war. In 1950 he opened the small shop he and his wife, Clara, now run. Inflation has hit the fur business, too, Hochstein said.

"My wife's beautician, for example," he said. "Today he'd have to pay almost five times what he paid for his coat. That was three years ago."

A raccoon skin then was $8, he said, but today it's $35.

The high price of pelts accounts partly for the popularity of Hochstein's current best-selling style, a combination of fur and leather.

"These have to be designed nice," he said, "but it gives a casual look and the cost of the garment is a lot less because you don't use as much fur."

Still Hochstein thinks nothing beats an all-fur coat.

"It's flattering," he said. "And, if you buy something with good quality, in a conservative style, then you'll have something that will last 25 to 30 years."

Good mink jackets cost between $900 and $1,000, Hochstein said.

"But, it's an investment," he said, "something you can hand down to your daughter or fix up for yourself for another 10 years."

Hochstein would like to have an apprentice, but his requirements are tough.

"It takes about six years to learn the trade," he said. "You need a kid, someone who can live at home, because he's not going to be paid anything. He's going to be standing, watching me, doing nothing for the first year. But, by the time he's 20, he can make a living anywhere in the world."

Ohio employment shows decline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Employment of Ohio production workers and other nonsupervisory personnel during February dropped 8 per cent from the same month a year ago, the Ohio State University Center for Business and Economic Research said Thursday.

Employment in the category, which includes agricultural, governmental and public education employees, was down 7 per cent for the first two months of 1975 compared to the first two months last year.

The center said all eight major cities in the survey showed declines in February compared to a year ago, with Franklin County recording the largest drop at 11 per cent.

Ottmar Mergenthaler, a Baltimore machinist, invented the keyboard method of typesetting, which revolutionized newspaper publishing.

Nation's land use planning uncertain

BY JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Looking out from his congressional office over a smoggy Washington at dusk, beyond the power plant smokestacks three blocks from his window, beyond the freeway intersection, beyond the Washington slum and towards the Virginia suburbs, Mo Udall complained about the army of bulldozers marching over the land.

"Every day when the sun goes down you lose 10,000 acres," he said.

For Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., it was a familiar theme, one he has been talking about for several years: The United States needs to plan its future growth before random development devours the nation.

Airport authorities are building jetports, federal agencies are planning superhighways, housing developers are converting farms bordering metropolitan areas into suburbs, "and they're all making single-focus decisions," Udall said.

In another Capitol Hill office, on another day, Republican Rep. Sam Steiger, a New Yorker transplanted to Arizona, sat at his desk, his cowboy boots planted firmly on his office floor, and tried to explain the emotions raised by one of Udall's favorite issues, land use planning.

"It's hard for a person who has spent his life in urban areas to understand the attachment to the land that people who've spent a life in land ownership have," Steiger said.

Steiger doesn't question the need for land use planning. But he disagrees with Udall over who should do it and how it should be done. Woven throughout his arguments is a belief that no agency in the federal government is equipped to carry out land use planning.

"Unplanned growth is chaos," he says, but asks: "Why should you trust land use planning, in a qualitative, oversight situation, to the people who brought you the penny post card for eight cents, three weeks late?"

Land use planning, in its broadest form, is an attempt to direct the growth of the United States, with an overriding goal of protecting the nation's natural resources while providing for its needs in housing, commerce and recreation.

Steiger and Udall, representing neighboring Arizona congressional districts, are on opposite sides of the land use battle lines as they prepare to lead their troops into congressional combat.

Udall, sponsor of unsuccessful land use legislation last year, re-introduced a land use bill, titled "The Land Use and Resource Conservation Act of 1975" on Feb. 20. Steiger vows to fight it, as he has fought all other attempts at federal jurisdiction in the land use planning field. The Ford Administration also is opposing it, saying Udall's proposal would violate the President's moratorium on new spending.

Udall, a candidate for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, and Steiger, a conservative Republican party stalwart, are not the only figures involved in the land use controversy. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee and also a candidate for his party's presidential nomination, has led Senate efforts on land use legislation, opposed by Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz. Special interest groups, including home-builders, architects, farmers and businessmen, have sent their lobbyists to Capitol Hill, and various right-wing groups have plied the members with letters and pamphlets opposing land use planning.

Land use planning legislation, originally the key to former President Richard M. Nixon's environmental legislative program, first passed the Senate in 1972, by a 3-1 margin.

It came up again in 1973 during the first session of the 93rd Congress, was approved by a slightly smaller margin, and was sent to the House. The House, last year, refused by a vote of 211-204 to consider the issue on the floor after it was approved by the House Interior Committee. Jackson introduced both measures in the Senate and re-introduced the issue in the current session on March 6.

There has been little debate so far over the latest bills, although hearings have been held, but there is much disagreement over what the original bill would have done.

Supporters say it would have encouraged, but not ordered, each state to devise a land use plan as an overall view of how its land areas should be used. Such a plan could list a state's endangered environments and decide what areas could be developed, what areas could be farmed, and what areas must be left untouched.

Supporters of Udall's original bill say urban and suburban areas would be the most effected by the bill, but it has venerated the most interest, and opposition, in less developed areas of the West.

The specter of more uncontrolled, unplanned sprawl is raised by Udall in his arguments for his proposals, just as his opponents raise the specter of bureaucratic bungling and invasion of property rights.

"Before nightfall every day a whole range of decisions are made that effect a whole range of folks down the road. The home-builder, responding to pressure for more homes and the need to make a buck, finds 400 acres and builds homes. He's made a decision that we don't need it for farming," Udall said.

"Land use decisions are being made by all kinds of people and not with the longterm interests of society in mind."

Is land use planning necessary, Steiger is asked.

"It's absolutely critical," he states.

But, as he tells audiences and interviewers and fellow congressmen over and over: "The federal government can only compound this problem. If we have to have land use planning and we defer to the feds, we won't get it. I happen to have minimal regard for federal expertise in anything."

How about the states and state government? Can they do it?

"I don't know of any state government that has the competence," he said. "It has got to come from the communities. The farther you get from there, the more arbitrary the decisions are and the less likely they are to be valid."

Ohio Perspective

Bill sponsorship race heavy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The "Great Bill Sponsorship Race" is in full swing in the Ohio General Assembly with two Cleveland representatives and a Columbus senator jumping off to an early lead.

Running well ahead of the field is Rep. John D. Thompson, D-15 Cleveland. He is listed in the legislature's bulletin as the author of 85 bills and 12 resolutions.

That's an average of almost two a day during the first 44 days the General Assembly has met this year.

Close behind is Rep. Ike Thompson, D-13 Cleveland, who is listed as sponsor of 77 bills and 12 resolutions.

In the Senate, Sen. Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus, is listed as author of 44 of the Senate's 206 bills. Woodland also is a sponsor of 32 resolutions.

It's a tighter race in the Senate. Several contenders run close behind.

Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion, has his name on 42 bills and 12 resolutions. Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, claims authorship of 40 bills and 14 resolutions. Sens. Thomas E. Carney, D-32 Girard, and Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, both have their names on 39 bills.

No trophies are awarded in this lawmaking race. The payoff comes in November, 1976, when legislators must convince skeptical constituents how hard they've been working in Columbus.

The bill race makes a handy scoreboard to which the legislator can point.

Many voters don't realize that a legislator can become an author by raising his hand and asking that he be listed.

As a matter of principle, it should be noted, many legislators do make a point of reading a bill before they become its author.

Appropriation bills in the legislature almost seem to be written on flypaper the way they pick up things as they go along.

Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton, became frustrated when the Senate Finance Committee sought to add more funds to his welfare bill. It began as a supplemental appropriation of $14.7 million, but the House tacked on $4 million neither he nor the welfare department wanted.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The first passenger steamboat built in nearly half a century will be christened "Mississippi Queen" April 30 at Louisville, Ky., highlighting the opening of Kentucky Derby Week.

U.S. Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee will christen the new stern-wheeler with champagne.

The ceremony at the Louisville public landing will precede a three-way steamboat race, believed to be the first on the Ohio River in this century.

The annual race between the Delta Queen of Cincinnati and the Belle of Louisville will be joined by the Julia Belle of Peoria.

Betty Blake, executive vice president and general manager of the Delta Queen Steamboat Co. said both the Delta Queen and Mississippi Queen will continue passenger service on the Ohio, Mississippi, Cumberland, Illinois and Arkansas rivers.

Christening scheduled

The Senate committee then boosted it by $2 million more with an item that didn't even deal with welfare, prompting Young to ask the committee to "stop hanging more things on the tree."

"It's already festooned enough," he said. "We might as well go ahead and amend the regular appropriations bill (about $12.2 billion) into it."

That halted the proceedings temporarily. Some members said they will offer at least one more amendment on the Senate floor.

The Mississippi Queen will go into service March 2, 1976. It is 80 per cent completed, she said. The new carrier cost $17 million and is made of steel to conform to the Safety at Sea Act.

The Delta Queen has an exemption from the act until Nov. 1, 1976, and is the last overnight passenger boat plying the inland rivers of the United States.

Selection of the name for the new steamer was a result of a national contest, she said.

Mansfield teachers face loss of jobs

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Some teachers in the Mansfield City School District may lose their jobs if the school board approves a recommendation of Lloyd J. McCrory, school superintendent.

The school system now employs 550 classroom teachers for 9,785 students.

McCrory will ask the school board next week to let go 120 teachers with one-or two-year contracts for economic reasons. The teachers affected have all been given notice.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Turning Point of Jim Malloy" may sound like an old Kingston Trio ballad, but in fact it's the wretched title of a first-rate TV movie coming up Saturday night on NBC.

Don't miss this 90-minute drama, a superior yarn about a Yale dropout who returns to his Pennsylvania home town and, after revelations, a scrape with the law, boozing and newspapering, "finds" himself.

Originally called "Gibbsville," the show is based on a batch of John O'Hara short stories which Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Frank Gilroy has made into one story. He also directed the show.

Gilroy's dialogue is lean and understated, his direction unobtrusive. And the cast members are consistently low key and economical in acting style as they bring to life O'Hara's Ivy League and quaintly cynical — or so it now seems — view of life.

John Savage is a standout as Malloy, a young, upper-class, genteel hell-raiser returning to Gibbsville after his expulsion from Yale for a prank too mighty for even that august emporium to tolerate.

After a quick drink and some necking on the homeward train with a passing chorus girl, he arrives in town and is met by his father — Biff McGuire — a tough, no-nonsense doctor currently spending all his time battling a flu epidemic sweeping the Gibbsville area.

There are terse preliminaries — Pop wants to knock the kid's block off. Then the show, set in the postwar era, quickly plunges into its central theme of the embittered young man finding his way in a world of infidelity, strong drink and various deceptions.

After various plot twists and turns, Malloy takes a turn for the better. It starts after his father bails him out of jail following a drunken driving charge. He asks his father one question:

"What if I told you I was going to turn over a new leaf?"

"Again?" Dad growls. But he's sufficiently convinced to wangle the lad a job on the home town newspaper, run by a crusty managing editor, as they all are.

It is there he meets a burnout, once-famous newsman, brilliantly played by Gig Young, who has alcoholically teetered back to his first newspaper to live out his reporting days with a still-jauzy air.

The show's ending is an old-fashioned happy one that doesn't quite ring true. No matter. The program, a pilot for a possible TV series, is fun to watch, particularly for the craftsmanship involved in its making.

Our thing is Paint

It seems like everybody is doing his thing these days. Which is okay if the "thing" is done right. If not... then there's a real "hang-up" of one kind or another.

Take paint, for example. This highly specialized product is being sold by clerks in some stores who don't know which paint to recommend for the many kinds of surfaces paint is made for. Or how much paint is needed. Or what kind of brush or roller to use.

We could go on and on. But the point is... our "thing" is paint. And we know paint better than we know ourselves. Better (we believe) than any retailer in town.

So let's do our "thing" together the next time you paint. It's the thing to do if you want the right paint in the right amount at the right price.

OFFICE OPENED — John Gall, left, is congratulated by Jim Wilson, representing the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors Club, at the formal opening ceremonies of his new Nationwide Insurance Co. office on Clinton Avenue Friday morning. Gall had operated an insurance agency at 331 E. Court Street for the past four years before expanding his business with the move to the new and larger office. Attending the formal ribbon-cutting ceremony besides several Ambassador Club members were Gall's wife, Patricia, and his two children, Tammy and Timmy.

Atom reactor safety device opposed by utility firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators say that opposition from utility companies could pressure the government into omitting a key safety device for the nuclear breeder reactor.

The device, called a "core catcher," would spread nuclear fuel from a shattered reactor core to prevent an uncontrolled chain reaction and thus keep a serious internal accident from becoming a public disaster.

The federal government and private industry are working on a joint project to develop a breeder reactor.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' investigatory agency, has reported "very strong indications that utility participants are opposed to including a core catcher" in the demonstration breeder reactor being planned.

The GAO report, obtained by The Associated Press, said that under proposed contract changes, the utilities could pull out of the project and this threat "could place tremendous pressure on (the Nuclear Regulatory Commission) in arriving at a decision" about whether the core catcher should be added.

In an effort to expand enormously the nuclear fuel supply, the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) and a number of utilities and reactor-manufacturers have joined to develop a "breeder reactor."

Such a reactor would use part of its radiation to transform unusable forms of uranium into plutonium. As a result, the reactor would manufacture more nuclear fuel than it uses up.

But plutonium is widely regarded as a far more dangerous element than uranium. Furthermore, the breeder reactor would operate at higher temperatures, requiring cooling by a molten metal, sodium, which can burn or explode spontaneously on contact with water.

Although deemed unlikely, it is possible that a serious failure of the cooling system could let a reactor core break up or melt.

If the fuel material managed to run together, it could start a chain reaction and heat buildup that could crack open or melt through the reactor's container, releasing highly radioactive materials to the surrounding neighborhood.

"The Nuclear Regulatory Commission believes that such an accident, although unlikely, is within the realm of possibility and should be provided for in the design," the GAO report said. It added that the NRC thought this "may necessitate additional features, such as a core catcher."

Although ERDA is the federal agency participating in the breeder development program, the NRC is responsible for power plant licensing and safety.

ERDA is seeking new funding of $181.5 million for the breeder project. And ERDA proposes to take full authority over the project while allowing the private companies to withdraw if they don't like any major design changes ERDA makes, such as adding a core catcher.

Pomona Grange holds meeting

MADISON MILLS — The Pomona Grange met Thursday in Madison Mills with the Marshall Grange hosting the activities. Master Nathaniel Tway presided at the meeting.

Reports were submitted by each of the subordinate granges present. Mrs. Louise Rankin spoke for Marshall Grange which had five members in attendance. Mrs. Wayne Shobe reported for Madison Goodwill Grange which had eight members present, and Winfred Morgan discussed the activities of Forest Shade Grange. Otties Smith gave a short legislative report.

The Pomona Grange responded to an appeal for aid from the Elmdale Grange in Ross County.

The literary program, "Miracles of Spring," was directed by Mrs. Charles Cook. The program included readings and a quiz for the members.

Those present discussed at some length the action which should be taken by individuals in case of a tornado.

An auction at the close of the meeting netted some $38 for the grange treasury, and Marshall Grange provided refreshments afterward.

City police officers check assault report

Washington C. H. police reported an assault today, while the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported a Jeffersonville person bitten by a rat and two missing Bloomingsburg juveniles.

While Fred R. Moore, 15, of 115 Water St., was at the Clark service station, W. Court Street, at 10:55 p.m. Thursday, he was approached by two white males who drove up in a car, exited and approached him saying, "You have been hassling Sheridan and this is a gift from him," according to police department reports.

Vietnam war costs topped $141 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — If approved in total or in part by Congress, the $972 million in emergency military and humanitarian aid for South Vietnam sought by President Ford would join more than $141 billion the United States already has spent on behalf of the Southeast Asian nation since 1961.

And the Indochina struggle has had a huge human toll as well: more than 46,000 Americans and 241,000 South Vietnamese died in combat, and the Pentagon estimates over 1 million Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops have also been killed.

U.S. officials estimate that the South Vietnamese army still has more than $2 billion worth of U.S.-supplied military equipment after losing about $1 billion in supplies during its recent retreat.

During the current fiscal year ending June 30, some $700 million in U.S. military aid was appropriated for South Vietnam.

The largest American spending by far occurred between 1967 and 1970.

The men then hit Moore, knocking him to the ground and proceeded to kick him.

City police are investigating the assault incident.

Paul L. Mabry, 11 Fent St., Jeffersonville, was bitten by a rat which was caught in a trap Mabry was attempting to pick up and move.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported the incident at 10 p.m. Wednesday, at 15 Main St., in Jeffersonville.

Mabry, who was bitten by the rodent on the left middle and left ring finger, was treated by his family physician. A 15-year-old Bloomingsburg girl have been reported missing since Thursday by sheriff's deputies.

Wilbur E. Matson, 5 feet, 6 inches in height; 130 pounds; having red hair and brown eyes and Becky Thacker, 5 feet, 2 inches in height; 90 pounds; having brown eyes and long brown hair and last seen wearing an orange top, blue jeans and black and white tennis shoes, are being sought by deputies. It is not known what Matson was wearing at the time of his disappearance.

Blue Drummer to open Wednesday

Van-Orr Foods, Inc. of Zanesville is opening its tenth restaurant, The Blue Drummer steak house, on Columbus Avenue in Washington C.H. Wednesday, April 16.

The Blue Drummer family steak house, a fast-food operation featuring T-bones, sirloin strip, ribeye and chopped steaks in complete dinners with baked potato, tossed salad and roll, is constructed in early colonial design with a 250-person seating capacity.

The interior and exterior decor revitalizes the colonial and revolutionary periods of American history. Pictures and flags depicting historical events, including "Old Glory" and the "Spirit of 76", are displayed within the restaurant and employees are dressed to complete the theme.

The Zanesville-based corporation, headed by president Thomas Orr, who started the chain in 1969, has grown to a multi-million dollar corporation. A subsidiary of the firm is the Famous Recipe fried chicken chain, which is located throughout southern Ohio.

Van-Orr Foods presently has ten stores in the chain with three under construction and plans for opening ten additional businesses within the year.

Orr said Van-Orr Foods chose to locate in Washington C.H. because "The people were really friendly to us when we arrived, the banking institutions offered all the help they could, the Chamber of Commerce and unemployment offices were outstanding in their services and having studied the area for over a year, we felt it was an ideal location."

Van-Orr Foods, Inc., will hire 54 employees to operate the local steak house and reported it has an option to purchase another site in Washington C.H. for a chicken house, with the ultimate aim of providing nearly 100 jobs for local residents.

"Van-Orr Foods, Inc. plans to expand both steak and chicken divisions into a multi-unit chain throughout Ohio and into bordering states," Orr said. "With this expansion, Van-Orr Foods will be adding several more hundred employees to the present, which will create more opportunities in the field of fast-food management."

Joseph Lutz, 20, Chillicothe, previously manager of the Covered Wagon Steak House in Circleville, has been employed to manage the local restaurant.

Lutz, a 1972 graduate of Chillicothe

High School, advanced from trainee to manager in just nine months.

Lutz said he is presently commuting from Chillicothe but intends to relocate shortly in Washington C.H.

"We feel the community will give us a good business and we're planning to run the best store in the chain here in Washington C.H.," he said.

Assisting Lutz in managing the steak house will be Layne Monk of Circleville. Hours for the restaurant are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. week days and 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

Traffic Court

Acting Municipal Court Judge Omar A. Schwart found a New Holland man guilty Friday on charges of driving while intoxicated and reckless operation.

Martin D. Noble, 31, New Holland, had pleaded innocent to both charges and was represented in the court hearing Friday by attorney Robert L. Simpson.

Noble was arrested Jan. 4 by Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy Donald L. Cox after Cox stated he had observed the defendant's vehicle veering in both lanes of traffic while traveling westbound on U.S. 22 in Union Township.

The reckless operation charge resulted when the defendant placed his vehicle in reverse after stopping for Deputy Cox and struck the cruiser.

Judge Schwart fined Noble $200 for driving while intoxicated and sentenced him to the mandatory three days in jail with a 30-day suspension of his driver's license. A $100 fine imposed on the reckless operation charge was suspended. Washington C. H. city solicitor Gary Smith served as prosecuting attorney during the court proceeding.

In two traffic cases aired Thursday, Municipal Court Judge Reed M. Winegardner fined Christopher R. Waldup, 23, of 803 1/2 Clinton Ave., $25 for failure to yield the right of way and Nickie D. Johnson, 20, Columbus, $100 after he pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle without a license.

Charge dismissed

In only one non-traffic case heard Thursday, Washington C.H. Municipal Court Judge Reed M. Winegardner dismissed a charge of issuing a bad check against a Washington C.H. woman.

Wilma Roberts, 32, of 617 S. Elm St., had been charged with issuing a bad check for $20 at Hidy's Food store on Columbus Avenue March 14.

Judge Winegardner dismissed the case upon the request of the plaintiff.

Ohio aviation department head speaks to pilots association

The head of the department of aviation in Ohio, Norman Crabtree, addressed some 60 persons who attended the April meeting of the Fayette County Pilots Association Thursday at the Terrace Lounge.

The speaker was named by Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes in 1964 to lead a program to promote the construction of county airports in Ohio's rural areas. Crabtree's primary responsibility at that time was to convince local officials, especially county commissioners, that airports would play a major role in the development of their county in the ensuing decades.

Fayette County proved to be one of the state's most receptive areas, and two members of the three-man board of commissioners were present at the meeting. Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, who served as commission chairman at the time, and Robert Mace, who still maintains a seat on the commission, were lauded by Crabtree for their cooperation and foresight in acting quickly to begin work on the airport. The third former county commissioner, Robert Fichthorn, was not in attendance.

Fayette County was the first of 62 counties to complete construction of a local airport. The facility here was dedicated in the fall of 1966. It has since served as a base for pilots engaged in crop dusting and as a means of access to industrial development in this area.

Crabtree noted the growth of industrial development in the areas surrounding the airports in Ohio, and said that the tax revenue obtained by the counties from these firms has repaid, several times over, the cost of the facilities.

During his talk, Crabtree explained that recent action by the Federal Aviation Administration has been a threat to private flyers. Regulations requiring pilots and airports to obtain expensive equipment is pushing small operations into a corner, he said. He added that he had just returned from Washington D. C. where he had enjoyed some success in demonstrating to the FAA the hardships such legislation would impose on the private pilot. According to Crabtree, some progress has been made in preserving the right of the pilot to operate his craft without being overburdened by unnecessary equipment.

Crabtree concluded by saying that Ohio has been a model state in its promotion of aviation, and delegates from the state have backed several alternative plans to FAA proposals in recent years. "It is imperative that we maintain our role as leaders in this area," he said.

The meeting was well attended said Jack Sanders, president of the pilots association. Several state officials were present in addition to interested local residents. Those attending included John Clark, deputy director of the Ohio Department of Transportation; Mr. and Mrs. John Woodmansee, managers of the airport here; Bill Dennis, former airport manager; J. Herbert Perrill, county commissioner; many members of the Fayette County Pilots Association, and other interested residents and their wives.

Don Hopewell, assistant veterans' employment representative for the U.S. Department of Labor in Cincinnati, is staying in Washington C. H. for a few days and attended the meeting. It was noted that pilot training is approved for Veterans Administration benefits, and two employees at the local office of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services who are veterans are currently taking aviation training under the GI bill.

Copters join search for missing boaters

HILLSBORO — Ohio Highway Patrol helicopters joined the search for two missing Cincinnati men Thursday, the fifth day of unsuccessful attempts to locate them or their boat at Rocky Fork State Park.

"It was a clear, bright, perfect day, and they spotted nothing but a lot of fish," said park manager Robert Rooney. "We haven't learned a thing today that we didn't know yesterday."

Park officials are still puzzled by the absence of any debris or signs of the capsized boat.

Shoes, a cap and a glove belonging to Steve Wilkin, 24, were recovered from Rocky Fork Lake earlier this week. He and a friend, Ronald Kluba, 27, were on a weekend fishing trip and have been missing since they left their homes Friday.

Rooney said about 500 yards of the lake in the vicinity where the clothing was found have been dragged systematically, with no results. He said the search would continue until the two missing men are located.

Ohio woman Viet victim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twila Donelson, 44, a Mansfield, Ohio native, died a week ago in the crash of a C5 transport plane carrying South Vietnamese orphans near Saigon, the Pentagon announced Thursday.

The Pentagon made public the hometowns of 40 U.S. civilians, most of them women employees of the Navy, who were on board the plane.

Mrs. Donelson, the divorced mother of four children, was born and reared in Mansfield.

She took a leave of absence from the Air Force in Texas to go to Vietnam to explain better warehousing techniques, a relative said.

The relative said some of the children were married and the others scattered around the country.

Expect completion of Ohio interstates

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Richard Jackson, director of the Ohio Department of Transportation, says despite Ohio's financial problems, the interstate highway system will be completed in the early 1980s.

Jackson told a meeting of the Highway Users Federation in Cleveland Thursday that only 7 per cent of the interstates remain to be completed, but that 7 per cent covers 113 of the most difficult miles his department has to construct along Interstates 480, 90, 275, 680, 270 and 675.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Inauguration of the Ohio Lottery's new "Lucky Buck" game has been set for May 5, the lottery commission announced Thursday.

The commission also said that the state had earned $24.5 million on the game through March 30 and that prospects were good for fulfilling the promise lottery officials had claimed for the lottery.

"With introduction of Lucky Buck, the projected gross revenue figure of $100 million for the first year of operation appears within reach," lottery Director Robert Malaga said.

Lucky Buck is to offer 23 chances to win per ticket and to introduce another ticket beyond the regular one. The new ones are to cost $1 each.

Earnings to date represented 40 per cent of gross sales, Malaga said. If earnings continued at that rate and the $100 million goal were reached, the game would return $40 million to state coffers by August.

Sheriff's association battles abolishment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The executive director of the Buckeye State Sheriffs Association says the Lucas County sheriff is taking the wrong approach in attempting to have his office abolished.

The executive director, Dale Fisher, told a legislative committee on Thursday that Sheriff William M. Callanan has rejected help from the association in dealing with problems facing the sheriff.

Fisher added that a proposed bill allowing urban counties to abolish the office ignores the fact that counties already can change their form of government through charter amendments.

But Fisher said his association is opposed to the bill allowing the office to be abolished.

"We had some serious problems with the presidency recently, but no one suggested abolishing the office and contracting with the Queen of England to run the country," Fisher said.

Sheriff Callanan asked the committee's help on Thursday in abolishing his office.

Callanan appeared before the House Transportation and Urban Affairs Committee on Thursday in support of a pending bill which would allow urban counties to abolish the elective office.

He called the office an "outmoded, archaic and inefficient office" which should be eliminated.

"As long as this office remains, to be used as a political football under the patronage system, there can be nothing but confusion for the taxpayers and no way to pinpoint responsibility for mistakes," he said.

Callanan said the sheriff's office is given an insufficient budget to deal with county problems.

He said he has five patrol cars to cover 184 square miles of unincorporated area in Lucas County, but most of his money must go to meet court orders mandating better jail care.

He said he wants to give the jail function to the courts; the civil branch, which delivers legal papers, to the court clerk and have the county contract with city governments for police protection.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, would allow citizens to petition for a vote on abolishing the office.

By law, the lottery must return at least 30 per cent to the general fund. The state budget is counting on $88 million from the lottery this year.

A lottery spokesman said that with sales settling down to about 4 million tickets per week, the operation bids well to reach the $40 million return figure.

Noting that State Rep. John A. Galbraith, R-69 Maumee, seeks to phase out the lottery by the first of next year, a lottery spokesman said any such shutdown should be up to the voters who approved the constitutional amendment that permitted the lottery.

"If the people want to cancel it, they can vote it out," said James Skelly, lottery publicity chief. "Or they can just stop playing, because as soon as our operating costs go over 20 per cent (of sales) we are out of business, or as soon as we don't return 30 per cent to the state, we're out of business."

Malaga said that 49.2 per cent of the lottery's net revenue was being distributed to public schools and higher education. Other distribution, he said, included 10.5 per cent for transportation of mentally retarded children, 17.1 per cent for welfare and 9.9 per cent for such areas as disaster relief and transportation of the elderly.

He said 7.1 per cent went toward property tax reduction, 4.3 per cent to state court operations and 1.9 per cent to such items as retirement of Vietnam veteran bonus bonds.

'Blue collar blues' muted by need for incomes

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer
LORDSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — The young militants don't sing the "Blue Collar Blues" so loud at General Motors' sprawling plant these days.

The blues — complaints of boredom on the assembly lines, the need for change, the foremen who mistreat workers — have been muted by mortgages, car payments, grocery bills, families and a few years.

"A boring job is better than no job at all," said Sam DiPietro, one of 2,800 workers laid off at the plant that makes all of GM's Vegas and many Chevrolet and GM vans. Some 1,900 were due back today.

When the most automated auto plant in the world opened here in 1966, the workers' average age was in the early 20s. It was still in the 20s during the big strike in March 1972.

Now the average age is over 30.

"They have other things on their minds now: car payments, mortgages and families they have to support," said Marlin "Whitey" Ford, 33-year-old president of United Auto Workers Local 1112.

Three years ago last month Local 1112 struck the Lordstown plant set on rolling farm land on the edge of the Cleveland-Akron-Youngstown industrial complex.

The union blamed grievance and contract language for the walkout. Workers voiced another reason: assembly line work was demeaning.

Psychologists called it the "blue collar blues."

Softly in the background in these recession times the blues wail on. "There are some nights I can't wait to get out of there," said James W. Forsyth, 29, a laid-off assembly line worker. "It's the same thing over and over and over."

Ford, the union president, said: "Of course, automation was an issue. It always is. But, the underlying thing was you had a different management that came in trying to run roughshod over people. The people fought back."

In October 1971, GM replaced Chevrolet Division and Fisher Body management at the plant with General Assembly Division executives.

The division eliminated some jobs and combined others. The line was speeded up. Workers rebelled. Many of the 100 Vegas produced each hour had to go to the repair yard for broken key locks, slashed electrical cables and for parts that weren't installed.

The union walked out first in March

1972 for three weeks. In fall 1974, union workers struck again and stayed off the job seven weeks.

Bitterness from that struggle remains. Forsyth said some Lordstown workers are "so down on GM they won't even buy one of their cars."

"I'm sorry about that," he said. "GM feeds me and I'm going to help them. I drive one of their cars."

But DiPietro, at 41 a representative of the older union faction, thought the crippled economy and the $240-a-week contract minimum wage had mellowed some of the more militant workers.

Management spokesman John E. Brincko thinks, too, that tensions have eased since 1972. He also feels the blue collar blues were overrated, that the 1972 dispute was "just a plain labor dispute."

"We've never said the work isn't monotonous," he said. "All jobs have a certain amount of monotony. Mine does and I'm sure yours does."

Forsyth complains management still does not care about the workers.

"There's not a great relationship between foremen and the workers like you would have in a small plant," he said. "When they come around and give you your check they ask you for your number, not your name. It's demeaning, disheartening."

But Nick Schecodnic, a 30-year-old welder, finds management attitudes improved since 1972. Schecodnic said he has noticed less arrogance since the plant held training sessions for foremen.

"I think they realized if they go in there with the old iron fist, the guys will stick together and, if they do, they would cause a lot of trouble," he said.

Workers once talked about assembly line reforms. The traditional line with its simple repetitive tasks would be replaced by a team working under its own supervision that would assemble a complete car.

"You don't hear much of that now," Schecodnic said, "but it's still in the back of their minds."

Brincko said: "That type of work could get as monotonous as the assembly line. It is used in Sweden, and I think you'll find the workers there have the same complaints."

Not every worker gets bored on the line. "I happen to like the job," said DiPietro, calling the assembly line "a challenge."

However muted the so-called blues, the workers still exchange complaints over a beer in a bowling alley on "the Strip" of bars, night clubs and restaurants between Youngstown and Warren.

Paul Gustovich, 23, complained that foremen were tough. "The way they treat people is an infringement of individual rights," he said.

Rocco DiCintio Jr., 25, added: "I fell down and hurt my knee and the foreman made me work an hour until my shift was done."

"As far as I'm concerned it's not the automation, it's the contract," said Lewis Cickelli, 22, a Lordstown worker since 1970. "Management just won't live up to it. We have to be militant."

Ford hit the same theme earlier, complaining GM wanted recalled workers to come on their own time to pick up their badges and get job assignments. "That clearly is a contract violation," he said.

Not all worker aggression is aimed at the company. Many workers complain of apathy in the union and contend Ford and other officers ran for union positions "because it's the best job in the plant."

"There's just no way you can please everybody," said Ford.

He added that while complaints against management may not be as loud, the basic causes of the Lordstown strikes remain.

Business seeks practical grads

NEW YORK (AP) — The bleak employment prospects for this year's liberal arts graduates point up, in the view of some authorities, a basic conflict in the American concept of education.

The conflict is mainly between educators and employers, but it is the graduate who suffers. Educators tend to stress the value of a broad education; employers seem to prefer the more practically educated youngster.

As a consequence, reliable estimates place at 1 million the number of broadly educated liberal arts graduates by 1980-1981, nearly triple the number of 1960, while another study shows a shrinking market for their skills.

The College Placement Council, for example, found that liberal arts hiring decreased over the past five years, with three-fourths of employer respondents to a study saying they fill less than 10 per cent of openings from liberal arts ranks.

While aggravated by the recession, the problem is also part of a long-term trend to fewer sources of employment in such traditional areas as teaching and social services.

This forces the CPC, a nonprofit organization whose membership includes college placement officers and employers alike, to conclude that if basic improvements are to be achieved, it is essential to develop an adequate corps of specialists in career counseling and placement.

Essential — but apparently unlikely for the time being.

"Relatively little money is available to implement work in career counseling and placement in four-year colleges," says Robert Herrick, CPC executive director and a veteran observer of job trends.

"Right at the time when these youngsters need all the help they can get in four-year colleges, the colleges have less and less money available, and they get none from the federal government," he laments.

Almost the entire federal emphasis on career education is at the high school and junior college level, he argues, leaving the financially pressed four-year schools without the ability to advise their students.

While that dilemma remains to be resolved, the CPC believes other changes might be equally urgent. For one thing, Herrick believes students must be provided an expanded choice of courses in the form of minors and electives.

And it is important also, he insists, that programs be developed to provide internships, part-time work and summer jobs, all of which, of course, provides students with a realistic view of the world in which they must earn a living.

The CPC has scheduled a national meeting May 27-30 in Washington, D.C., to seek ways to achieve a better matching of education and career opportunities.

Even if answers are forthcoming, however, they won't help this year's class very much. Almost all indicators show a bleak job market, "the worst of the 70s," says Herrick.

Foster slams two homers in win

Reds sweep three games from L.A. Dodgers

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
The Cincinnati Reds picked up where the Los Angeles Dodgers left off. The Dodgers were National League baseball champions last year and they're still the defending champions. But the Reds have made the first three jumps in a checkers game that is expected to end only when there is one king left.

Cincinnati blue may still be 159 games from being determined, but the Reds three-game sweep of the first crucial series of the season had them thinking about an abdication. "We might have drained a little morale out of them," said reliever Clay Carroll after he nailed down the Reds' uphill 7-6 victory Thursday night. It was the third straight one-run victory for the Reds over the Dodgers. The Dodgers won the NL West last year by four games, beating Cincinnati 12 out of 18 times along the way. The Reds didn't play Thursday night like they were impressed with that performance, rebounding from deficits of 5-0 and 6-5. "This means a lot to us," said Tony Perez, who supplied the clutch tie-breaking double in the eighth inning. "That's how they beat us last year." Elsewhere in the NL, the St. Louis Cardinals dumped the Montreal Expos

7-2; the Philadelphia Phillies shaded the New York Mets 3-2 in 11 innings; the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Chicago Cubs 8-4, and the San Francisco Giants blanked the San Diego Padres 2-0 in 11 innings. With one out in the eighth Los Angeles reliever Charlie Hough, who lost opening day to the Reds, hit Pete Rose with a pitch. Then, just to prove it was an accident, he did it again, hitting the next batter Joe Morgan. Perez, reportedly peddled by the Reds at baseball's winter meetings, then proved everybody else's loss was Cincinnati's gain by ripping a double down the left-field line. Morgan was thrown out trying to score but Carroll protected the one-run margin and the Dodgers had been run out of town winless.

The Reds had scored five runs in the fourth to tie the game at 5-5, but Bill Buckner's run-scoring double in the sixth put the Dodgers in front. In the seventh, George Foster tied the game again with his second homer of the night. Foster's first homer, a leadoff blast, sparked Cincinnati's five-run fourth inning. Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson called that shot "the hardest ball I've ever seen. It was a rocket." Phils 3, Mets 2, 11 innings

Physically, Tony Taylor doesn't get into games until late but mentally he's in there before the first pitch. "Every day when I come to the ballpark I've got to prepare myself mentally," Taylor said. "I say to myself, 'I'm going to pinch hit today and I'm going to get a hit.' It's a full-time job."

His last swing was one too many for the Mets. Taylor sent Alan Bannister from first to home with his 11th-inning double that snapped a tie and beat the Mets.

Pirates 8, Cubs 4

The Pittsburgh bats, still warm from two extra days in the Florida sunshine, were able to cut through the chill in Chicago. And Willie Stargell's bat was the hottest.

Stargell, the Pirates' massive slugger, belted four home runs enroute to a four-hit day, as Pittsburgh dumped Chicago.

Chicago's pitchers gave up four home runs. Manny Sanguillen and Richie Hebner contributed the other two.

Cardinals 7, Expos 2

Rookie pitcher John Denny overcame Montreal and a case of the jitters for his first major league victory.

Denny, who gave up five hits, left the game in the seventh with a 3-2 lead. He was made even happier an inning later when the Cardinals fattened the spread with four more runs.

Lou Brock slammed a bases-loaded double to highlight the burst and reliever Al Hrabosky made it stand up with two flawless innings.

Giants 2, Padres 0, 10 Innings

Bobby Murcer made his first game in the National League memorable with a run-scoring double that gave pitcher Jim Barr and the Giants their extra-inning triumph over the Padres.

Murcer, the former New York Yankee star, tagged reliever Rich Folkers for a double and raced home on Gary Matthews' double. Chris Speier then sacrificed and Matthews came home on Steve Ontiveros' ground out.

Barr went the distance, yielding eight hits. The big righthander struck out four and walked one.

Madison Plains rips Trace

OUTSIDE CORNER — Miami Trace pitcher Greg Cobb tosses one by a Madison Plains batter in Thursday's 8-3 loss to the Eagles. Cobb struck out three, but he gave up six runs in the three innings he worked as the Panthers season record dropped to 1-6.

The Madison Plains Eagles rapped out eleven hits for eight runs to hand Miami Trace its sixth loss against one win for the season in a non-league contest Thursday afternoon at the Panther's field.

The Eagles scored six runs on eight hits in the first two innings off Panther starter Gary Cobb as the top of Madison Plains batting order had a field day.

The Panthers came back with two runs in the bottom of the third after second baseman Phil Skinner drove in a couple of runs with a long bsehit, but Skinner was thrown out going into third to kill the Panther rally.

Miami Trace got another run in the fourth to cut the Eagles lead to three runs on an RBI double by Bob Phillips, but Madison Plains put the finishing touches on the victory in the top of the fifth off reliever Kevin Dunn.

EAGLE SHORTSTOP Russ Tope came to bat with a man on and rapped a two-run homer giving Madison Plains an 8-3 lead. Tope's round tripper was one of two hits off Dunn as Larry Calkins came in to pitch the last inning.

Cobb was nailed with the loss dropping his season mark to 1-1 as the Panthers failed to get any runs across the plate in the last three innings stranding nine base runners.

Coach Dave Pellior's nine will square off against rival Washington Senior High Friday afternoon in an SCOL game with either senior Tom Riley or junior righthander Alan Conner on the mound.

A's pound Chicago White Sox, 9-0

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
What do you do when you suddenly lose your best pitcher to the whims of baseball's arbitration process?

If you're Alvin Dark, Bible-toting manager of the Oakland A's, you seek comfort in the scriptures. Dark, in need of guidance after Catfish Hunter slipped out of his Oakland contract and into New York Yankee pinstripes, turned to Jeremiah 33:3:

"Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not."

Enter rookie right-hander Mike Norris. Norris, a 20-year-old from San Francisco, made his major league debut Thursday with a sparkling three-hitter as the A's pounded the Chicago White Sox 9-0.

"I've found my Jeremiah," declared Dark in a phone call to A's owner Charles O. Finley.

Norris, who likes the nickname and, in fact, bought a Bible himself during spring training, said, "The name's right on. I'm with the Bible all the way."

There were just two other games played in the American League. The Baltimore Orioles opened their season with a 10-0 rout of the Detroit Tigers and the Texas Rangers shaded the Minnesota Twins 5-4.

"I've had dreams about doing something like this," said Norris after his successful bow, "and now it's all coming true."

Norris surrendered a first-inning lead-off single to Pat Kelly, but promptly picked him off base. Carlos May's second-inning single and Kelly's double in the ninth were the only other hits off Norris, who walked three and struck out three.

"I was sure he was nervous at the beginning," said catcher Gene Tenace, "but when he picked that guy off base I said to myself, 'Who knows what he'll do'."

"We all wanted Norris to do well, partly because of sheer necessity," added slugger Reggie Jackson. Jackson hammered a three-run homer and Bill North and Joe Rudi had three hits apiece for the A's, who collected nine hits off five White Sox pitchers, starting with loser Stan Bahnsen.

Orioles 10, Tigers 0

Jim Palmer, making an impressive return from the sore elbow that hampered him all last season, stopped Detroit on three hits. Lee May, acquired from Houston over the winter, belted a three-run homer and Don Baylor had four hits and three runs-batted-in for Baltimore.

"We missed Jimmy Palmer almost all last season," said Birds Manager Earl Weaver. "With him back it's like we traded for another pitcher."

Rangers 5, Twins 4

Cesar Tovar's eighth-inning double drove in one run and Minnesota reliever Bill Butler walked in another as Texas won its first game of the year.

Both runs were unearned, the result of a two-out throwing error by Twins' third baseman Eric Soderholm.

Jim Spencer belted a three-run homer for the Rangers while rookie centerfielder Lynn Bostick collected three hits for Minnesota.

IHL attendance figures show rise

DETROIT (AP) — Attendance at International Hockey League games in the 1974-75 regular season was up 157,628 from the previous season, the league said Thursday.

Commissioner Bill Beagan said the league entertained 1,257,929 fans in 398 games, compared with 1,100,301 in 342 contests a year ago.

The Saginaw Gears had the best attendance with 165,545. Toledo was second with 157,711, followed by Flint with 143,729.

Palmer pushing for Masters lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Can the old man win it one more time?

"If it doesn't peak now, I'm not sure it will ever peak," says the 45-year-old Arnold Palmer, surveying the game that thrust him into the thick of a gold-studded pack going into today's second round of the Masters Golf Tournament.

"I have been getting ready since December. I have been swinging better for the last month and a half. I feel my game is as good as I can possibly make it."

Polite cheers early in the day for Lee Elder, the first black man ever to tee it up in this festival of golf's elite among the pines, turned to exciting roars at dusk for the Masters sentimental favorite as Palmer toured a steady par and birdie course to the final hole.

There on the 420-yard uphill holly hole, where his bid for a championship drowned in a double bogey of errant shots in 1961, Palmer hit a heavy three-iron into the sand and took his lone bogey for a 69.

The score, climaxing a rain-spattered day of triumph and frustration for the field, didn't give Palmer the lead, but you couldn't tell that to members of Arnie's Army, thirsting for the first major victory since Arnie won his fourth Masters in 1964.

The first-round leader is Bobby Nichols, a strapping parttime club pro, who hardly hit a faulty shot in firing a bogeyless 67, five under Augusta National's par 72.

Poised behind Nichols at 68 were the heavily favored Jack Nicklaus, bidding for his fifth Masters, and the other Miller — Allen, not Johnny — a pleasant, moon-faced University of Georgia graduate who joined the tour in 1971.

Johnny Miller, sensation of the winter tour with three victories in Arizona and California, slogged in with a 75, putting him in jeopardy of missing the cut, and said glumly:

"Maybe all my luck is averaging out — this is for sure, if you can't putt, you can't play. I've been putting awful for four weeks."

Palmer's 69 put him in a tie at that position with J. C. Snead — old Sam's nephew — and Tom Weiskopf, winner at Greensboro, N.C., last weekend. Just behind them at 70 were former champion Bill Casper, plump Bob Murphy and young Tom Watson.

Sam, 62, winner of three Masters, joined a half-dozen others, including a revived Lee Trevino, at 71 — making 16 players under par. Defending champion Gary Player had a 73 and U.S. Open king Hale Irwin a 73.

Elder was one of the 60 over the orthodox figure, shooting a creditable 74 under extreme pressure.

"It was super for me," said the 40-year-old Washington, D.C., pro. The Augusta gallery saluted him with 32 rounds of applause. "They applauded every time I walked on the green," Lee added afterward. "They were beautiful."

Buffalo Braves trip Bullets

By The Associated Press
The Washington Bullets had the best home-court record in the National Basketball Association this season, winning 36 games — tying a league record — and losing only five.
But the Buffalo Braves certainly aren't convinced of the Bullets' superiority at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md.
During the regular season, the Braves won both their games against Washington on the Bullets' court. And Thursday night, they again beat the Bullets at Landover, 113-102, in the opening game of their best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series.

In other NBA playoff games, the Detroit Pistons tied their best-of-three opening round Western Conference series against Seattle, thrashing the SuperSonics 122-106, and the New York Knicks evened their best-of-three opening round Eastern Conference series against Houston, beating the Rockets 106-96.

Detroit will be at Seattle Saturday night in the final game of their series, with the winner going on to meet Golden State. New York will be at Houston Saturday afternoon in their nationally televised final game, with the winner to face Boston.

The Washington-Buffalo series also resumes Saturday afternoon at Buffalo. Game two in the Western Conference semifinal between Chicago and Kansas City-Omaha will be at Kansas City-Omaha Sunday afternoon. The Bulls lead 1-0.

pion, paced the Braves with 35 points and 14 rebounds. Randy Smith added 27 points and Gar Heard contributed 24 points and eight rebounds.

The Braves took the lead for good 67-60 with 11 consecutive points in the third period.

Phil Chenier, returning to action after a week layoff because of a back injury, led the Bullets with 23 points, but missed eight of his last nine shots. Elvin Hayes had 20 points and nine rebounds for Washington.

Neff wins 4 events in meet

The Miami Trace trackmen came up on top in another dual meet by trouncing Madison Plains, 96-22, Thursday afternoon on the Panther cinders.

The Panthers simply outclassed the Golden Eagles by sweeping five events and taking eleven firsts.

Hurdler Kirk Neff led the way with his usual wins in both the lows and the highs plus a first in the long jump and an anchor winning run in the half-mile relay to give him four wins on the day. Sprinter Bill Warnock took three firsts plus a second place finish in the long jump to rack up 18 points for the Panthers.

Brewers, Indians to collide

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers and Cleveland Indians, both blending an almost certain future Hall of Famer with abundant youthful talent, open the local portion of the American League season today before an expected record County Stadium crowd.

Despite forecasts of low 40s temperatures and partly cloudy skies, all grandstand and bleacher tickets had been sold by Thursday afternoon for what is Hank Aaron's homecoming as much as Opening Day.

Sale of standing room only tickets starting two hours before game time could push attendance over 50,000, compared with the Brewers' home record of 46,812. The old Milwaukee Braves' paid attendance record was 48,642. An exhibition during which fans were allowed to stand in the outfield drew 51,100 in 1967.

Opening Day has been circled on area calendars since Nov. 2, when the Brewers obtained Aaron from the Atlanta Braves. Baseball's career home run record holder with 733, now the Brewers' designated hitter, built a huge area following while with the Milwaukee Braves from 1954 through 1965.

Cleveland designated hitter Frank Robinson will be in his second game as the major leagues' first black manager. He hit his 575th career home run Tuesday to help the Indians win their opener.

Top Gilligan aide gives testimony

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The head of the state's major hiring agency under former Gov. John J. Gilligan was to appear today before a grand jury investigating charges of payroll irregularities during the closing days of the Democratic administration.

Franklin County Prosecutor George C. Smith has subpoenaed former administrative services director Joseph E. Sommer and seven other witnesses to testify about state hiring and payroll practices.

Smith's investigation has focused on allegations that Democratic campaign workers did not appear regularly for state jobs they received after the November election.

Sommer has said Gilligan's ex-chief of staff John Hansen asked him to please find work for some 70 party loyalists late last November. Sommer said his aide Daniel Helmick subsequently placed about 40 people. Helmick is also scheduled to testify today.

However, Sommer said he insisted that everyone hired would be expected to report on a full time basis.

Officials in the departments of industrial relations and taxation have charged that some 30 workers on their payrolls were rarely, if ever, seen at their assigned posts. Smith and the Ohio Highway Patrol have concentrated on those two agencies and the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

Several former state employees testified Tuesday, but two BMV workers, John S. Snow and Daniel Metzger, were in the grand jury room only briefly and reportedly did not answer any substantive questions.

The same was true of Diane Bonar, a one-time employee with the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Smith refused to confirm or deny a published report that all three invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Youth government program attended by 400 students

Some 400 students, including 14 from Washington Senior High School participated in the statewide Youth-in-Government program in Columbus recently.

Students in Hi-Y clubs throughout Ohio converged in Columbus to hold mock meetings of the state legislature. The youths submitted pieces of legislation which were then voted upon by the other junior lawmakers. Those approved by the youths are later read on the floor of the Ohio House and Senate.

Mike Pope was the only local student to hold an elective office during the three-day session. He outdistanced three opponents for the office of chaplain of the House of Representatives.

All three bills represented by students from Washington Senior High School met with defeat. A bill introduced by Gary Hill which would require all towns to obtain a tornado warning device which could be heard by all community residents died in the house and was never placed on the floor for a vote.

Legislation lowering the age of compulsive education from 18 years to 16 was defeated in the senate by three votes. It had been submitted by Jim Smith and Mike Hughes.

A bill offered by Tim Dove and Hugh Patton was also defeated in the house. It would have required all persons over 50 years of age to take a physical and written examination every other time

Also expected to testify today is William Bannon, Gilligan's deputy campaign manager and a coordinator of his recount operation.

A number of those involved in the recount effort reportedly were also on the state payroll. Bannon was not.

they sought to have their operator's license renewed.

David Mustine and Brian Connell submitted briefs to the Ohio Supreme Court seeking a landmark decision to eliminate the sovereign immunity for schools. The request stemmed from the mock trial in Fayette County Common Pleas Court in which Judge Evelyn W. Coffman ruled that the board of education was immunized from civil prosecution.

Tim O'Flynn and David Garringer argued to retain the sovereign immunity, and the court upheld the present status of immunity by a vote of six to one.

Defense attorneys Rory Souther and John Walker won their appeal to the high court. They contended that the plaintiff in a suit against a local retail establishment who was awarded $40,000 damages in the Common Pleas Court mock trial had contributed to her own injuries and therefore was not entitled to sue the store. She had tripped and fallen over a carton in the aisle of the store, but her medical history showed that she was prone to dizziness and fainting spells.

Dan Rodgers and Jeff Lemaster, attorneys for the plaintiff, were unable to preserve the damage award granted by the lower court.

The event was the 24th annual youth-in-government program sponsored by the West Virginia and Ohio YMCA. The students lodged in the Pick Fort Hays Hotel in Columbus after raising their own money to finance participation.

George Shoemaker, Hi-Y advisor at Washington Senior High School, and William Still, an interested area resident, accompanied the students on their venture.

Three mishaps investigated

Washington C.H. police reported two minor accidents Thursday, while the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported one.

Doctor's license under suspension

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Medical Board voted unanimously Thursday to suspend for three months the medical license of 76-year-old Rocky River Dr. Leslie Dean.

The board found Dr. Dean guilty of grossly unprofessional and immoral conduct in dispensing drugs to two persons without prior medical examination.

The board also voted to place Dean on probation for an additional three months.
